

MATERNAL AFFECTION.
Who has not known a mother's tenderness? Through every period of her anxious life, it is the same deep love feeling. Oh! There's naught of earth so pure, so hallowed, in sickness and in sorrow, I have proved. How tenderly she loves, how deeply feels For the young opening blossom of her being.

NEW ENGLAND FARMERS.
I have other reasons for keeping our young men at home besides the good of New England. From my soul, I do wish we had ten times our present number of farmers! You know the history of the last year. It is decided that in our large cities, the mob rules, and the laws are cowards. It has been decided that to horse-whip a clergyman in the streets, shall cost $600,—for a black man to horse-whip the chairman of the selectmen, only thirty dollars; and for common men to destroy property and beat and kill one another, it shall cost nothing! Look forward, and what is before us! There is not a city in this land which the mob cannot rule when they please and as they please;—and there is an end to law, when even a neighborhood chooses to nullify it. Who is surprised to read in a newspaper that even innocent men are lynched, as it is called, abused, degraded, dishonored, and yet no law will reach them to protect their lives, or to punish the transgressors. There is one class of men upon whom we can as yet rely. It is the same class that stood on the little green at Lexington,—that gathered on the heights of Bunker Hill, and poured down from the hills of New England, and which were the life blood of the nation when the English Lion was ready to devour it!—I mean the Farmers of New England. They were never in a mob—they were never found tramping on law and right. Were I to commit my character to any class of men,—my life when in danger,—my family, and my country's safety, it would be to the Farmers of New England. They are a class of men such as the world never saw, for honesty, intelligence, and Roman virtue, sweetened by the Gospel of God. And when this nation quakes, they and their sons are those that will stand by the sheet anchor of our liberties and hold the ship at her moorings till she outrides the storm. Why cherish New England so? Why keep her sons on her soil? Because God has given her a heritage sufficient, and our sons need not wander away from the graves of their fathers. They may be free, independent and rich here;—and here they certainly will be virtuous and happy. Here sleep our fathers! names that need not go to fable to become illustrious; no changes in time can obscure their glory! Shall we not love and stay by the land which contains the dust of such men? On these hills and through these valleys there ever will be industry and temperance, iron sinews and noble hearts; shall we not encourage our sons to stay and drink the pure waters and breathe the pure air which God has poured over this soil? With her school-houses, her academies, and colleges, New England can never have any other than a cultivated mind—a population which will ever stand high in the scale of manhood, the whole world being judge. Her sons have already thrown a deathless glory over her, and I doubt not, will yet do wonders for the good of man. Think of these blue hills!—are there any like them? Think of these sweet brooks and valleys!—are there any like them? Think of these villages; these sons and daughters—think of these schools, these Sabbaths, with a ministry unchallenged the earth over, these temples of God so frequently blessed with the visits of the angel of mercy—think of New England as she has been—say where is the spot on the face of the earth, that will bear comparison with her! And where is a spot for your sons to spend their pilgrimage on earth so safely, so pleasantly, so usefully? O could I reach the ear of our young men in New England, I would say to them, 'here is land enough, like it. Here is enterprise enough, and here is the sheet anchor of this nation; stay by the sepulchres of your fathers; stay by the soil which none but freemen may tread; stay by the fountain which is for the salvation of the land; and when you have covered our soil, and millions swarm here, then go out and seek other homes. But above all I would say, whether you stay here or go away, remember that New England is your mother, and never act unworthy of your parentage!'—Rev. J. Todd's Address.

Heating Rooms without Wood or Coal.
There is nothing—even in this day of inventions—with which we have been more pleased than a neat little affair recently invented, and now for sale in this city for heating rooms without the aid of wood or coal. The apparatus to which we refer, consists of a lamp, a boiler, and a radiator or stove. They are so constructed as to produce any required degree of heat, merely by burning the steam of rum, whiskey, or any other ardent spirit. The steam is generated in the boiler by the heat of the lamp, and is forced through blow pipes into the radiator or stove, where it heats a current of air which is made to pass through it. The boiler, with the pipes attached to it—by the aid of a self-acting blow pipe, the power of which is one of the greatest known to art, is in this apparatus made to act upon the atmosphere in such a manner as to produce heat at a trifling expense. The article is small, neat, and portable, and is indeed a very pretty ornament for a centre table. It occupies not more than a square foot, and weighs about twenty pounds. A company has been formed for the manufacture of these articles. We witnessed one of them a few days ago. The quantity of heat sent forth was astonishing. They are accompanied with no danger. We shall speak again of this neat, useful and economical invention.—N. Y. Trans.

ANECDOTE.—A farmer once hired a Vermont to assist in drawing logs. The Yankee when there was a log to lift, generally contrived to secure the smallest end, for which the farmer chastised him, and told him always to take the butt end. Dinner came and with it a sugar loaf Indian pudding. Jonathan sliced off a generous portion of the largest part, and giving the farmer a wink, exclaimed, 'always take the butt end.'

Diogenes being asked of what beast the bite is most dangerous, answered of wild beasts that of a slanderer; and of tame beasts that of a flatterer.
He is a temperate man whose reason rules his appetite; and he is an intemperate man whose appetite rules his reason.

Diamonds. Diamonds! what a strange passion; what a curious disease; what a topic for speculative curiosity, is the thirst which some women feel for these precious articles! And as if it were not enough to spend thousands of pounds on what paste and glass may be made to imitate, they need have better than their neighbors, and in the desire to outshine, for every thing else. Many a handsome woman enters a room, far prouder of the stones in her hair and on her bosom, than all the real advantages that Nature has given her; and many an ugly woman has ruined her husband, and starved her trades-people, that she might have a larger drop to her necklace, than Lady Ballyna. Why? Is the handsome woman happier or even more admired; is the ugly woman less ugly with her diamonds than without them? Of all the different madnesses and false tastes created by idleness and luxury, surely this is the most unaccountable! A certain lady of fashion was for years in the habit of collecting emeralds, pearls, and other precious stones, one by one; and after she had a sufficient number for a necklace, she would request her husband to "set them." Extravagance in proportion with this branch of expenditure, gradually consumed what had originally been a splendid fortune; the lady sighed over the increasing embarrassment of their circumstances, but continued her collection of jewels. At length the day arrived when they were pronounced ruined, who had long been so in reality. The lady behaved beautifully on the occasion; agreed to every species of retrenchment but refused to give up her jewels, which would have covered almost one half of their debts. Tempted some time afterwards by a jeweler's advertisement, she went out, succeeded in bargaining for the most pure and perfect emeralds, and on her return, found that her husband, who had been long in low spirits, had shot himself through the head. The jury brought in a verdict of lunacy—and all his friends went about regretting that they had not foreseen and prevented his melancholy end;—but no one saw madness in the lady's conduct; and she afterwards made a rich banker (her second husband) set that very emerald as a drop to the most superb necklace ever worn at Court by, and one under the rank of a royal duchess.—The Wife.

ANNUAL CALCULATION.—An ingenious, authentic, and valuable statistical work, published recently, states, the number of inhabitants who have lived on the earth, amount to about 36,627,843,275,075,846. This sum the writer says when divided by 3,096,000 the number of square leagues of land on the surface of the globe, leaves 11,830,698,684 persons to each square league. There are 22,864,000 square miles of land, which, being divided as above, gives about 1,314,522,076 persons to each square mile. Let the miles be reduced to square rods, and the number he says will be 4,858,173,500,000, which being divided as above gives 1283 inhabitants to a square rod, which rod being reduced to feet and divided as above, will give five persons to each square foot of terra on the globe. Let the earth be supposed to be one vast burying ground, and according to the above statement, there have been 1283 persons buried on each square rod, capable of being divided into twelve graves, and that each grave contained 100 persons, and the whole earth has been 100 times dug over to bury its inhabitants, supposing they had been equally distributed.

Remarkable Circumstance.—Upon the trial (by court-martial) of Captain Seymour and the officers of H. B. Majesty's frigate Challenger, for the loss of that ship near the port of Concepcion, on the coast of Chili, the extraordinary fact was given in evidence that the late earthquakes on that coast have transformed what was previously a current of two miles an hour to the northward, into a current of five miles an hour to the southward, and that the soundings along the whole coast have been materially changed.

CURIOUS CUSTOM.—In Friedland, as in Sweden, the steeples are generally built apart from the churches. Were these erected on some neighboring hill, one might suppose the object to be the extension over the whole scattered parish, of the circle within which the bell is audible; but they are frequently on lower ground, and always quite close to the building, the top of whose pent roof is sometimes higher than that of the steeple.—Elliot's Letters.

ANCESTORS.—The number of ancestors a person has, is astonishing at first sight; at first two parents, in the second four, the parents of his father and mother; in the third eight, the parents of his two grandfathers and two grandmothers; by the same rate of progression, 1024 in the tenth; and at the twentieth degree, or at the distance of twenty generations, every person has above 1,000,000 ancestors, as common arithmetic will demonstrate.

BLEEDING AT THE NOSE.—The information contained in the Philadelphia Journal respecting a case of this description, which appeared almost desperate, is valuable and important. A young man 19 years of age, bled so profusely, that he fainted several times. Mineral acids, ice to the neck, &c. were tried, but without stopping the flow of blood. On the third day Dr. Bruner was called in, who blew up powdered Gum Arabic through a quill—the hemorrhage ceased directly.

NEW YEAR'S ANECDOTE.—A little girl was despatched by her mother on New Year's day to wish a Grocer a 'Happy New Year,' with directions to tell him that she would 'take the gift in molasses.' Accordingly she took a jug and went to the store and did her errand as follows: Marm told me to come and wish you a happy new year, and here's a jug to put it in!

Dedham Advertiser.
Diogenes being asked of what beast the bite is most dangerous, answered of wild beasts that of a slanderer; and of tame beasts that of a flatterer.

Queer Catalogue.—A catalogue of Paintings exhibited some time since in London, embraced the following:—No. 16, a man;—nine tailors at work. No. 27, The spirit of contradiction:—two brewers bearing a cask, the men going different ways. A man in his element:—A cook roasted on his spit, before a kitchen fire. 36, a man out of his element:—A sailor thrown from his horse, and his head striking against a mill stone. 73, A man loaded with mischief:—a fellow with a magpie, a monkey and a woman on his back.

A way to dispose of a Pauper.—A friend at our elbow informs us that the people of a small town "down east" being burthened with a heavy tax to support their paupers, they determined to diminish the evil if possible—and being entitled to one Representative in the General Assembly, they selected one of the likeliest fellows on the pauper list, and elected him to the office, that the State might support him for a time at least.

A Head of the Church.—Samuel Applin, who, for upwards of half a century, has performed the perilous task of oiling the vane on the summit of the Salisbury Cathedral, has, owing to age and infirmity, relinquished his office. He was proverbially called, at Salisbury, "the head of the church," from being so often at its top.

King John of England, who was induced by the threats of the barons to agree to Magna Charta, in the 13th century, gave to one of his subjects several tracts of land in Kent, to be possessed on the tenure that the subject should attend the king whenever he crossed the sea, and hold up his majesty's head if he was sea-sick.

Additional Testimony in favor of Thompson's Spring-Lever TRUSS.
(Certificate from Daniel Gilbert, M. D.)
METHOD is the natural consequence of whatever is most simple—and whatever is simple is easily understood. Your Truss is simple, and the application of it well understood by yourself and can be by every one. There is nothing more simple than to see that the cushion pad is bad, because a soft substance acts against a soft substance, and neutralizes the power of the spring, consequently it will not keep a hernia well up or effect a perfect cure. Your Conical Ball is a perfect cure, situated as it is upon the spring and capable of keeping a hernia perfectly up. I have no knowledge of so good a Truss, and I would recommend the application of it by all who have the misfortune to have a Hernia.

An effectual remedy.—Jewett's Improved Vegetable Pills, or German Specific, prove a sure remedy for the cure of Jaundice, Diseases of the Liver, Headache, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, Weakness of the Limbs, Constipation and Piles.
Among the many testimonials received of the salutary effects of these Pills, the following strong proof is submitted for consideration:
Extract of a letter from the Rev. Mason Knapp, pen, dated Sudbury, Vt. Sept. 3, 1835.
Dear Sir—It is with no ordinary interest that I undertake to recommend to the public the virtues of JEWETT'S Improved Vegetable Pills or German Specific, for the cure of Jaundice, Indigestion, &c. My own case has been one of the most unconquerable kind, having been at defiance medical aid, dieting, exercise, and the more fashionable specifics—the case of Saratoga—being totally prostrated in mind and body, I was induced almost without making use of the above named Pills, and surprised to find their powerful and salutary effects. My distressing symptoms daily increased, and I am now almost entirely cured of a distressing complaint, which, for years, had resisted a great variety of the most popular remedies. Yours, respectfully,
MASON KNAPP.
Minister of the Gospel, Sudbury, Vt.

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman of Boston, received through a Boston Post Office, dated Sept. 14, 1835.
Sir—I am induced by feelings of the most grateful gratitude to make known to the public the following cure by means of JEWETT'S Improved Vegetable Pills or German Specific, of a complaint which the dyspepsia, attended with pain in the side and stomach, loss of appetite, &c. I applied to several physicians, and used all the medicines generally prescribed, but persons in my situation; but they proved ineffectual. At last, in accordance with the advice of a friend who had been cured in a case something similar to mine, I made a trial of the above named Pills, and by my implicitly following the directions, they gave me almost instant relief, and by using two boxes more effected a permanent cure. I am now enjoying excellent health, and would heartily recommend to those persons laboring under dyspepsia, to make trial of the above medicine.
From the Rev. J. D. Drummond.
With feelings of pious gratitude to him (whence flows every good and precious gift, I now come forward to unite mine to the numerous testimonies of those who have experienced the happy effects of Dr. Jewett's Improved Vegetable Pills." For more than ten years I have suffered from a disease of the stomach, owing to a derangement of the digestive organs, and though I ran the recommended course of many remedies fitted for their relief giving virtues, yet all was useless, until at length through the advice of a friend, I consented to make trial of the above named Pills, the use of which has completely established my long wished for health.

Vegetable Rheumatic Drops.
MANY articles are before the public, and cure for that most obstinate and tormenting disease, the Rheumatism; and from close observation we are led to believe that they have, to a very great extent, failed to produce that desirable result; and may it not be attributed to the fact, that articles said to cure this troublesome disorder, are also recommended to cure almost every disease with which our frail bodies are attacked, and in their preparation that object is kept in view, viz: to have the medicine a cure for all diseases.

The Vegetable Rheumatic Drops are offered to the public as a remedy for Rheumatism, and as no case is known where a perfect cure was not effected, we are justified in declaring it a valuable medicine for that painful disease, and for no other is recommended.—Price 30 cents each bottle.

CERTIFICATE.
Messrs. CROSBY & Co.—I was afflicted for several months with the Rheumatism, and having used every remedy recommended by the most eminent Physicians within my reach without success, I at length procured a bottle of your Rheumatic Drops, or Sure Remedy, and made the application as directed, and before I had used one half of it, a perfect cure was effected; and to my knowledge, the same bottle cured two of my neighbors. It is now about two years since I used your medicine, and I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since.
